Well friends, winter is here and the cold ('cool' since we are in sunny, tropical Queensland!) weather is really and truly with us. Amazingly 'though the visitors to Elephant Rock have not diminished (at least not to the extent that we have noticed). So obviously the traveling nudists have not all migrated north following the sun. But then again the temps have not been really low and the frosts have not yet arrived. As long as these conditions last we should be OK.

The 'Leather & Lace Night' on Saturday 9th June went off with a bang. This being our first try at this kind of meal and dance theme night can only be described as a success. The costumes were really fab: most of the women were dressed in seductive lace and the men in leather - Andy in just cowboy boots, Ian in leather G-string (with front zip!) and of course Jaak dressed up in real cowboy chaps, seen here bowing to the heater in thanks for keeping the partygoers warm all thru the merriment.

Next day the spa was full again – count the heads:

Also this 'doo' saw the use of our new 'pads' for the caravanners and campers in tents. The people on the grassy positions on the hillside were happy with their positioning so we are now sure that the arrangement for visitors works well. Of course when the ablution block is finished (hopefully by our next scheduled 'doo' – X-mas in July) all required facilities will be just a very short stroll for them. The grass really does look extremely green around this campsite does it not? Really inviting! Shows we are still in the Spring mode here – no frosts.

Our next function is another first for us - Christmas in July on the 19th. This looks like being quite a show what with the number of bookings to date. Unfortunately we have enough to strain this place to the max so no more bookings please. If we were in Spring or Summer or even Autumn and the weather was warm enough for us to be outside the common room on the al-fresco breezeway we could have coped with a greater number of participants. But since we are in the cold month for this party we have to limit the numbers. The response 'though has been terrific. Thank you all for your enthusiasm.

For the 'doo' people: Santa will arrive; the chimney is waiting!

That's all folks for this to visit us yet, we are visits to come. Others to see you all again newsletter. You who have not managed looking forward to your first of many who have made the trip to find us: hope soon.

Keep healthy and happy,

Sue & Jaak
